Inside Out Records are poised and ready to drop their fifth EP, which is titled 'Days of Growth'. Stepping up to the plate to continue the labels previous success, are Italians Louis Kolben & Mozi. Featuring two tracks, this EP posses some strong dramatic influences that within itself, tell a story of emotion and change. The project reflects all the phases that occur, whilst on a pathway of growth as well as the obstacles that scan running time, which are experienced when breaking periods of intense activity.

The two italian producers Louis Kolben & Mozi kick things off with the track 'Stubborn'. Commanding an intensity from the get go, it has a solid drive and consistent energy from start to finish. To give it some light and shade, ambient landscapes and an edgier more glitchy vibe are brought together to enhance a unique sound. There is a clever sense of depth and physical space within this track, which adds a whole new dimension.

'Suddenly' is track number two from Louis Kolben. Dropping a notch or two and putting out a slightly deeper feel then track one, its the rich rolling bassline that really gives this track its backbone. The progression is subtle and seems slow at first, but it quickly builds momentum. Industrial inspired samples and some quirky sounds fill in the gaps, creating a well balanced contrast of sounds.
